Dear Parents,

Your child's education comes first with Warren County Schools, and we are very proud of the quality of our teaching staff. Principals regularly, formally and informally, evaluate their tenured teachers as well as new teachers to make sure their teaching skills are sharp.

This year, some provisions of a new federal law, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act often called, "No Child Left Behind," go into effect. It contains additional requirements for teachers that they must complete by the 2006 school year. Your child's teacher, _____ has not yet met some the new requirements, but Warren County Schools is working with our teachers to help them meet these requirements before the deadline.

You may find out about specific qualifications of your child's teacher by going to the Tennessee Department of Education Web site at <https://www.k-12.state.tn.us/certinf>. You can also review other helpful information about the new law.

As always, we encourage you to visit our schools and contact us whenever you have a question. As partners working together, we can make sure that your child is prepared for an exciting future.

Sincerely,

Jerry W. Hale, Ed. D.
